

Local CWA Placed 100 More Men at Work Here

Twenty of the Hundred Were Skilled Men Assigned to do Painting in City Schools—Local Administration Left for Albany Conference at Noon—Will Attempt To Increase Number of Jobs for Men.

The headquarters of the local CWA presented a busy scene this morning in the old armory with the clerical force at work getting out cards to place an additional 100 men at work at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Of this hundred men, 20 of them are skilled men assigned to painting jobs in the city schools. The local CWA now have a little over 200 men at work, and are increasing the number as rapidly as possible.

Some of the sewer projects have been started and men are working on the sewer projects at Franklin and Fair streets, Franklin and Pine streets and on Emerson street. Mr. Sanborn was expected here today to go over the Foxhall avenue sewer project with the engineers of the local CWA as the local administration is anxious to start this project moving.

Wednesday afternoon the local CWA received a telegram requesting that they attend a conference of all local CWA boards in this district to be held in Albany. Messrs. Henry Forst, A. S. Staples and Nicholas Hogeboom and Executive Director Hurford Shults planned to leave at noon for Albany.

The local CWA will take up the question of having Kingston's quota of 686 men increased so as to place more of the unemployed at work on approved projects.

Four Known Dead, Six Lost in Pacific Storm

First Severe Break of Winter Sweeps Northwest—Traffic on Land and Water Tied Up By Snow, Wind and Torrential Rain.

Seattle, Dec. 7 (AP)—Holding hope for six missing fishermen the Pacific northwest counted its known dead from the first severe storm of the winter at four.

Two small fishing boats were wrecked and a third was unreported off Vancouver Island. Fishermen at Victoria, B. C., said each carried a crew of two. But only the names of their missing captains were recorded—Ole Hansen and Einar Oskvig, whose craft were battered ashore, and Soren Knutsen, missing with his boat.

Other deaths blamed on the two-day storm were from wind-felled trees in western Washington and accidents to rain-blinded motorists in Washington and Oregon.

Torrential rains, high winds and heavy snowfall which swept a wide area let up yesterday afternoon in the Puget Sound region. The weather bureau forecast a now storm today.

Land and water traffic was tied up or handicapped, farm lands flooded, cascade highway passes clogged with snow, northern Oregon roads closed by slides, and railroad trains delayed.

Lindberghs Silent as Brazilians Greet Them, Future Plans Unknown

Natal, Brazil, Dec. 7 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today inspected the monoplane which carried him and Mrs. Lindbergh across the South Atlantic yesterday and found its left wing damaged.

He was out in the harbor long before noon, engaged in a personal examination of the big red ship, "Air France," the French International Flying Company which operates in its repair facilities to the Colonel, who is technical adviser to the Pan-American Airways.

While her husband looked on the plane, Mrs. Lindbergh took the opportunity to do a bit of sightseeing. Mrs. Scotchbrook, the wife of the British consul at whose home the flying Americans are being entertained, accompanied her on the tour of the historic city.

Natal, accustomed as it is to feigning, admittedly has a problem on its hands today in the matter of honoring Mr. Lindbergh. Colonel Lindbergh, who is being honored on their arrival yesterday from Bathurst, Gambia, Africa, continued to mask their plans and movements.

The usual rumors flew the rounds: Flights into the interior, hops along the coast—and even a grand tour skirting the continent, but there was neither "Yes" nor "No" from the flying couple officially.

So Natal had to be content with occasional glimpses of "Lindy" and "Anne" going to and from the British consulate—there is no United States consul here—and of speculating, apparently groundlessly, upon their future movements.

The most eagerly city of Brazil, Natal usually is the first place in the country to be reached by transatlantic fliers; but the arrival of the Lindberghs—and the singular reserve of the Colonel—topped all other like events in arousing interest here.

The entire population was out along the harbor when the Americans' big hydroplane roared in from the Atlantic yesterday afternoon. Cheers were deafening. Police battled the crowds to maintain order.

With Mrs. Lindbergh operating their plane's wireless, the famous pair had traveled over the ocean 1,875 miles in 16 hours and 10 minutes—she to become the first woman ever to fly in a plane across the South Atlantic.

1,127 Men Employed Patrolmen Endorse On County CWA Jobs; Junior League Revue Road Projects Listed

Ulster County CWA Will Have Office at 20 John Street—Men Put to Work Aimed to Be from Investigated Cases.

Andre L. F. Deyo of Gardiner, who has been appointed administrator for Ulster county for the Civil Works Administration, announced that between eleven and twelve hundred men went to work today on CWA projects throughout the county. The projects at present approved are road projects with the exception of one—the work of lowering the outlet to Maratana Lake on the Shawangunk mountain, source of water supply for the village of Ellenville.

The road projects are divided into two classes, county road work in various towns, under the direction of County Superintendent of Highways James F. Loughran and road work in the different towns under the direction of the local superintendents of highways.

So far the CWA has authorized the employment of 1,127 men in Ulster county. Of this number 556 have been apportioned to the county projects under Mr. Loughran and 541 to the local town projects. The men will be given 30 hours work per week, four days at 7 1/2 hours per day. The pay for unskilled labor on road work will be 40 cents per hour, according to Mr. Deyo, who states that this is the rate for highway work in this state as fixed by the state department of labor. He adds that the pay for unskilled labor on other projects will be 50 cents per hour.

The men put to work this morning, Mr. Deyo stated, are all from investigated cases, men who have previously been employed on county and local work relief projects. Men being registered with the National Relief Employment Service cannot be put to work at this time. Gilbert H. Beveridge, county welfare commissioner, assisted by Edwin U. Burhans and Edward Gunner, investigators for the county work relief bureau, were busy at the county house Wednesday transferring names from the former work relief rolls to the new CWA lists, preparatory to placing them at work today.

The Ulster County CWA will have an office at 20 John street, above the cigar store and the rooms will probably be ready for occupancy this week. The office will be in charge of George Burt. Mrs. G. W. Eckert of Kingston and Harold McCourt of Marlborough have been appointed disbursing officers. Mr. Deyo has not yet completed the rest of his organization.

County Superintendent of Highways Loughran has listed the following roads upon which work will be done under his direction:

Two Year Old Murder Case Revived as New Clues Are Sought Here

Brinker-Welk Murder on Long Island Over Year and Half Ago Is Cause for Sudden Activity by District Attorney's Office.

There was much activity about the court house Tuesday evening and throughout the night. District Attorney C. B. Murray spent most of the night in his office and the corridors of the court house swarmed with Troopers. All was mysterious to the public but yesterday afternoon it developed that the activity was caused by a new lead in a double murder which took place on Long Island over a year and a half ago.

There seems to be a revival of important facts in the Brinker-Welk murder case which happened near Mineola on April 19, 1932. So important is the lead that the assistant district attorney of Nassau county, together with five detectives, came to Kingston Tuesday and remained throughout the night and practically all day Wednesday making investigations and conferring with District Attorney C. B. Murray.

It will be recalled that Edward H. Brinker, Jr., an electric light salesman, was found murdered in a vacant lot at Williston Park, L. I., on April 20, 1932. Alongside his battered body was found Miss Rose J. Welk, 29, flashing stenographer who had expected to marry Brinker. Both had been beaten about the head with a heavy instrument and their throats cut. Miss Welk died shortly after in a hospital without being able to give any information as to who had attacked them. Robbery was not the motive for Brinker's money was not missing, the only thing apparently missing was a gold band ring with a small diamond which bore the inscription "I love you." This ring had been torn from his hand.

At the time of the murder Brinker lived at Elmhurst, L. I., with a second wife, Mrs. Josephine Nadal. Tolleston Brinker. Detectives after the murder claimed that Brinker had never been married to her although they had resided together for several years.

Brinker was known in Kingston. During 1930 when the miniature golf craze was sweeping the country he constructed an indoor course at the former American Cigar Factory building on Broadway. He also resided at the Nadal boarding house at Shokan which is a short distance off the main Ashokan boulevard and is known as Casa Nadal. Josephine Nadal Tolleston had been residing with Brinker for 10 years and prior to that she resided at the Shokan home.

While here Brinker was arrested on November 15, 1930, by the sheriff and taken to Brooklyn to answer to a non-support charge brought by his first wife from whom he was divorced. On November 16, 1930, he appeared before Judge Brill in children's court in Brooklyn to answer to that charge. He had been directed to pay $10 a week alimony back in 1926, when the divorce was granted.

Mrs. Tolleston, who was Josephine Nadal, is of Spanish descent. At the time of the finding of the two murdered people Nassau county police made a very complete investigation of the crime and came to Ulster county, where the Nadal family was interviewed but no one was ever arrested in connection with the murder. However, the Nassau county police apparently are still on the trail, as the present developments show.

When the bodies of Brinker and Miss Welk were found by a truck man they had apparently been beaten to death by some heavy instrument from behind and their throats cut. The missing ring from Brinker's finger had been given him by Mrs. Josephine Nadal Tolleston.

Brinker's car was found several hours before the bodies were discovered at Bayside many miles from the spot where the bodies were located. It is supposed that Brinker and Miss Welk were met at Bayside by someone they knew and considered to be (Continued on Page 15)

Mayor-elect H. B. Walker Announces Names of Those Who Will Compose Cabinet

Cahill for Corporation Counsel; Everett for City Treasurer; Dempsey for City Clerk, and Moore for Assessor—Will Recommend Norton for Superintendent of Public Works and Darrow for City Engineer.

Mayor-elect Harry B. Walker today announced that on January 1, he would appoint his cabinet as follows:

Corporation counsel—Matthew V. Cahill.
City treasurer—C. Ray Everett.
City clerk—Edgar J. Dempsey.
Deputy city clerk and clerk to mayor—Nelson W. Snyder.
City assessor—George W. Moore.
Special city judge—Walter H. Gill.
Scaler of weights and measures—William S. Moyle.

Mr. Walker stated today that he would recommend to the Board of Public Works that James G. Norton be appointed superintendent of the board, and that Henry D. Darrow be appointed city engineer. The mayor-elect said he was recommending the appointment of Mr. Darrow for this office until such time as he could be reinstated in his position as superintendent of the water department, in accordance with his campaign pledge.

Question Over New Office

When questioned about the appointment of accounting officer under the new accounting system now being installed in the city treasurer's office, Mr. Walker called attention to the charter provision which names the appointive officer and said that it was doubtful, at least whether the common council could legally create the office of deputy city treasurer, and that it would appear that a charter amendment would be necessary. The charter, however, does give the council authority to create the office of comptroller by ordinance.

Mayor-elect Walker said, however, that he would appoint Joseph H. Craig to have charge of this work and the title and duties would be defined later. Mr. Craig was treasurer of Winston & Company before that company ceased operations, and is highly qualified as an accountant.

An Able Cabinet

Mr. Walker has named men to the various city offices who are qualified to handle the work required of them. Mr. Cahill is a well-known member of the Ulster county bar.

Mr. Everett is a successful business man and has served the city as alderman-at-large.

Mr. Dempsey is a former mayor of the city and is thoroughly familiar with the duties of the city clerk.

Mr. Moore served the city as assessor under the Dempsey administration.

Mr. Gill is one of the younger members of the Ulster county bar, and is well qualified to fill the position of special city judge.

Mr. Darrow, who is recommended for the position of city engineer, is thoroughly familiar with the duties of the office, he having served in the same capacity under Mayor Crane when the positions of superintendent of streets and city engineer were combined.

Mr. Norton's record is said to be one that designates him as a man fully capable of handling the position of superintendent of the Board of Public Works.

James G. Norton, recommended by Mr. Walker for appointment as superintendent of the board of public works, was born and brought up in the Third ward. He graduated from School No. 5 and old Kingston Academy, and then attended and graduated as civil engineer from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. He has since been engaged with the New York State Highway Department as highway engineer, with the Public Service Commission as engineer on subway construction work in New York, and as construction engineer for contracting firms.

During the World War he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Engineer Corps and served here and in France, being discharged at the end of the war as captain in the Engineer Corps.

When the depression caused a general shutdown of construction work all over the country, Mr. Norton became one of the unemployed and during the past year has been employed as a foreman for the local work relief committee.

Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary Held Annual Meeting Wednesday

The annual meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital was held at the pleasant nurses' home on Wednesday afternoon, the president, Mrs. Walter Miller, Sr., presiding.

Although the weather was unpleasant there were a hundred and fifty people present including guests from New York city, Poughkeepsie, Ashokan, Rosendale and High Falls.

Annual reports of the officers and chairmen of the standing committees were read. A summary of the year's work was given by Sister Berenice and officers for the ensuing year were elected.

This report, accepted with thanks, was followed by the report of Mrs. Mary C. Fales, treasurer.

The accompanying reports of standing committees and sewing circles gave an impressive idea of the work accomplished by the women of the auxiliary for the practical needs of the hospital.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Crawling stocks pointed toward higher levels today notwithstanding the absence of important news from either the political or economic sectors.

The dollar moved in terms of pounds and French francs as the domestic gold rate was again unchanged, but currency fluctuations were rather narrow. Equity specialties were in moderate demand and gains of fractions to more than a point predominated in the early hours.

"Quiet accumulation" was the phrase used by bullish commission houses. Grains, cotton and other commodities were mildly mixed. Bonds, including U. S. government securities, were somewhat irregular.

Advances of a point or more were recorded by shares of Allied Chemical, American Tobacco Co., American Telephone, American Can, du Pont, Corn Products, Western Union, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Great Western Sugar, Vanadium, U. S. Steel Preferred, South Porto Rico Sugar, Case, Celanese, American Rolling Mill, Electric Auto-Lite, Auburn and United Aircraft. Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, General Electric and a number of others were unchanged to fractionally higher.

Some financial quarters believe that the foreign short position in the dollar is still extremely heavy despite the recent sporadic covering. Rumors that Washington and London had agreed to hold the dollar-pound rate between $5 and $5.25 were not taken seriously by usually well-informed bankers. The opinion, however, was expressed that both the British and American authorities would prefer quieter exchange markets, at least for the time being.

Says Nation Will Not Tolerate Lynch Law

Speaking to Federal Council of Churches of Christ, President Says Churches and Governments Can Work Hand in Hand.

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt is convinced the nation will not tolerate lynch law. Speaking to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America last night, he made plain his belief that America seeks a government of its own "that will be sufficiently strong to protect the prisoner and at the same time crystallize a public opinion so clear that government of all kinds will be compelled to practice a more certain justice."

The younger generation, the President added, "is not content with preachings against that vile form of collective murder—lynch law." In a rebuke, softened only by his failure to mention names, Mr. Roosevelt condemned "those in high places or in low who condone lynch law." Governor James Rolph of California recently gave verbal approval to the lynching of two kidnapers at San Jose.

The judicial function of government, the President reminded his listeners, is the protection of the individual and the community through quick and certain justice. That function, he added, in many places "has fallen into a sad state of disrepair."

"It must be part of our program to re-establish it," he said. Turning to a common objective of church and state, President Roosevelt described it as "a more abundant life."

Churches and governments, he said, can work hand-in-hand toward a new definition of prosperity—prosperity "socially controlled for the common good." He assured the council that it can be "a prosperity built on spiritual and social values rather than on special privilege and special power."

"From the bottom of my heart," the President said, "I believe that this beloved country of ours is entering upon a time of great gain. That gain can well include a greater material prosperity if we take care that it is a prosperity for a hundred and twenty million human beings and not a prosperity for the top of the pyramid alone."

High School Alumni Employment Bureau

One of the many accomplishments of the recently formed Alumni Association of Kingston High School has been the establishment of an employment bureau. The need for such a bureau has been manifest for many years, there having been no medium up to the present time by which graduates of the high school could make contracts with various employers. It is believed by the association that business and professional men in Ulster county will welcome this new agency, and will have confidence in the type of man or woman to be recommended by the bureau. All who are registered are and will be former high school students.

The bureau headquarters are at the Y. M. C. A. with Bert Van Dusen of the Class of '28 in charge. Application forms have been printed and all graduates of the school, both men and women, who are out of a job, or who are looking for better positions are invited to register. There is no charge of any kind. Employers who are seeking men or women to fill positions from time to time are asked to communicate with bureau headquarters at the Y. M. C. A. and their needs will be given prompt and courteous attention. It is expected that for most positions, the bureau will be able to recommend not only one, but a number of efficient and trustworthy graduates.

The bureau has begun operation under the following committee: J. Fowler, chairman; Carolyn Fort, Bert Van Dusen, Lenor Wonderly, and Elling Tinner.

PORT EWEN P. T. A. MEETS FRIDAY AFTERNOON AT SCHOOL

Port Ewen, Dec. 7.—Friday afternoon, December 8, the Parent-Teacher Association will hold its regular monthly meeting at the schoolhouse in district No. 13 at 8 o'clock. The program will be in charge of Mrs. S. P. Timney who will talk on "Facts (not opinions) concerning Alcohol."

All who are in any way interested in this timely subject, no matter what one's personal opinions about the subject might be, are urged to attend. A social hour will be held after the program.

Big Nazi Meeting at Garden Last Night

20,000 Gather for Steuben Society Meeting—15 Demonstrators Ejected by Police—German Ambassador Makes National Equality Plea.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Madison Square Garden thundered to Nazi cheers last night as 20,000 gathered for the long delayed German celebration of the Steuben Society of America.

Fifteen persons—eleven men and four women—were hustled from the 50th hall by police when they attempted to demonstrate. All were released after the meeting. The crowd cheered good-naturedly as the officers quickly pounced on disturbers and there was a minimum of trouble. Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador to the United States, in the principal address, made a plea that his country receive a grant of equality among other nations and the right to regulate her own affairs. He asked the audience, as Americans of German extraction, to "study the truth about Germany and not be satisfied with incomplete reports whose correctness is so often contradicted and inherently questionable."

Daniel C. Roper, secretary of commerce, also spoke. He called America the dream of an ideal of the early settlers which has not yet been fully recognized. Theodore Hoffman, acting chairman of the Steuben Society, presented a resolution condemning Mayor John P. O'Brien's action in banning the German Day celebration of the United German societies which was to have been held October 29, on the ground that it was a mask for Nazi propaganda. There were boos from the audience when the mayor's name was mentioned.

ARMY AND NAVY TO BE DRY DESPITE REPEAL

Washington, Dec. 7 (AP)—Both the army and the navy are to continue dry despite prohibition repeal. Secretary Dern said today he had not considered making any change in regulations for army posts that would permit liquor.

Under army regulations, the posts have prohibited the sale or possession of intoxicants for many years. Secretary Swanson said yesterday the "navy doesn't need whiskey to make it tight."

Litvinoff In Berlin, Friendliness Asked

"Objective Spirit" Prevails in Berlin Toward Soviet Government—Will Not Let German Stand on Communism Interfere.

Berlin, Dec. 7 (AP)—An appeal for friendly relations between Nazi Germany and Communist Russia was voiced today coincident with the arrival of the Soviet foreign minister, Maxim Litvinoff.

Litvinoff, however, bound after a successful mission to the United States and later talks with Premier Mussolini at Rome, planned only a brief stay here.

He was met by Soviet and German officials and after a brief exchange of pleasantries retired to the Russian embassy.

A few hours before the Russian diplomat's arrival, Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, head of the Nazi party's foreign political division, urged in an editorial in the Munich "Voelkischer Beobachter" that animosities between the two countries be forgotten.

Dr. Rosenberg expressed the hope that Litvinoff would not fail to take note of the "objective spirit" prevailing in Berlin toward the Soviets.

Defining Nazi Germany's attitude, the editor went on to say that "while Germany has established her position within its own borders, not only outwardly but also inwardly, it is altogether wrong to assume that national socialism wants to project its philosophic differences upon foreign politics."

"We hope an objective view will also gain ground in Moscow," the editorial concludes.

KINGSTON, N. Y., DEC. 7, 1933.

KINGSTON HOSPITALITY

At Durham, N. C., new residents are pleasantly surprised after settling there by the visit of the city's "official hostess," who brings a letter of greeting and good will from the mayor of the city, and gifts from the merchants anxious to make the acquaintance of the newcomers. Some of the shops give 50 cents in credit toward any purchase in their stores, and others send flowers, candy, groceries, fruits, etc. The plan is designed to make the new resident feel welcome, as well as acquaint him with the various shops and what may be obtained from them.

The donating shops supply their gifts gratis, and also contribute toward the salary of the hostess, who is a retired business woman, willing to contribute a part of her time in exchange for a small salary. The entire cost of the procedure is thus borne by the merchant, but he is glad to do it because it introduces the new resident to his shop.

Kingston might well consider this example of Durham, and try out this idea of having a hostess to make the new resident feel welcome. It would help the city to attract other people, and would give the merchant a chance to see the newcomer perhaps much sooner than otherwise. There is hardly a merchant who would not donate an inexpensive gift in exchange for a future customer. Kingston's business men might adopt such a plan and give it a try for what it's worth.

RURAL FIRE PROTECTION.

Farm fire losses, always a black mark on the dark pages chronicling the waste and destruction of our resources, have been steadily rising. Matters have reached the point where farm risk insurance is considered undesirable because of heavy losses suffered by insurance companies.

Physically, the average farm is made to order for fire. Houses are often of inferior construction, and many of them are so old and dry that they are like tinder when a blaze starts. Barns are filled with inflammable materials. And, in most rural districts, there is absolutely no fire protection.

That may have been unavoidable once, but it isn't any longer. Good roads and telephonic communication have made it possible to provide rural areas with fire protection that is practically as efficient as that of the great cities. Various communities have shown the way. Fire departments are established at central points, where they may serve the widest possible surrounding territory. The costs, when defrayed by a large number of property-holders, are insignificant in the light of the protection and benefits received. First-class, high-speed, standard apparatus—always the cheapest in the long run—is bought. A system of alarms is developed whereby the crew may gather and get underway with a minimum loss of time.

Rural districts pursuing such a policy have saved lives and property. They have demonstrated conclusively that a high farm loss is the result, not of necessity, but of neglect and lethargy and ignorance.

EDUCATIONAL REVOLUTION.

A Yale "old grad," after a recent visit to his college, reports himself impressed by new buildings but "fairly stunned by the students themselves." The first shock came when he found them lunching informally with instructors. In his day these two groups met only in the classroom. He reports:

That night, after dinner, coffee was served in the paneled lounge, with its deep-piled carpet and comfortable armchairs. In one corner a New York editor held court with interested students. In another, at the concert grand, a youth was playing Bach and fragments of his own composition. In the basement, I was told, a group was practicing chamber music.

He was invited to a little party in the quarters of a professor to meet an economist who had just returned from Washington and was going "to discuss matters with a group of students." The old grad described the gathering.

There were some two dozen boys in the room, on chairs, the floor, the window sills. After a brief outline of the gold-purchase plan and the situation of the currency, questions were invited. They came thick and fast. There was not a boy in the room who did not ask at least one, and they were questions indicating keenly critical minds and an amazing grasp of affairs. In about two hours and would have lasted longer if the professor had not given up.

The dazed alumnus departed on a midnight train meditating on "this educational revolution." He thinks there may be compensations for some of the things the college has lost since his day. His experience might be repeated by other old-timers returning to their respective colleges. It is a reassuring discovery.

STRATOSPHERE CHAIRS

Probably not many people, if they day-dream about travel and vacations, list the stratosphere among the places they want to visit. Yet it has its attractions. In the first place, it isn't necessary in the stratosphere to worry about old-fashioned winters. Major Chester L. Fordney, in his story of the recent American stratosphere flight, says: "As for weather, there isn't any. It's staid all the time, with no clouds and no rain. The sky is beautiful and there is perpetual sunshine."

Then, too, there is the opportunity the stratosphere offers for getting completely away from too-familiar surroundings and current, not to say currency, problems. Major Fordney and Lieut. Commander Settle "had occasional glimpses of the earth, but only through a haze." They could make out only "the outlines of the main topographic features." A third feature of the stratosphere for a brief outlook must be the fact that, unlike many other resorts, it can be left, at last, with no regrets. In spite of its freedom from weather and its remoteness from monetary policies, the visitor is always glad to get home again.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

NO OVERDOSE OF VITAMINS

In practically every discovery in medicine there are three phases or periods. First phase: when the discovery is made there is great enthusiasm and the majority of research men speak favorably of it. Second phase: a number of research men think that the discovery has been praised too much, and they begin to show that some of the statements regarding the discovery are not entirely true and that the discovery is not really very important. Third phase: a short or long time after the discovery, research men of the first two classes admit that they swung the pendulum too far in their statements for and against the discovery, and now agree on its true merits.

It would seem that something of this nature has occurred with the discovery of vitamins and that we are now able to get a true picture of these important food elements.

It has been proven that if fat soluble Vitamin A is not present in sufficient quantities in the food eye ailments, the prevention of the natural growth of the body, and the health of the nervous system may be affected.

Accordingly every food manufacturer whose product contained considerable amounts of Vitamin A, advertised that fact.

Further, health writers, including myself, advised the use of foods containing Vitamin A, namely: Beef fat, salmon, spinach, oranges, bananas, tomatoes, liver, eggs, and green vegetables.

No one has questioned the value of Vitamin A, nor have they stated that too much might be taken.

However, Vitamin D, bottled sunshine as it is called, that prevents "rickets" (bowlegs, knock knees, pigeon breast) is now under suspicion in that it has been stated that if too much is taken too much hard and bony tissue is formed which actually "ages" the patient by replacing soft elastic tissue with hard fibrous tissue.

This belief came about because huge doses of viosterol (concentrated Vitamin D) were fed to little animals and resulted in loss of weight, loss of appetite, loss of vigor, and the deposit of hard lime deposits in the walls of the blood vessels.

The point to remember is that viosterol must not be used in doses as large as the dose of cod liver oil, but in the drop dosage as prescribed by the physician.

As far as foods are concerned, a well balanced diet contains all the vitamins, and you cannot possibly get enough Vitamin D to injure your body no matter how much food you eat.

Chapter 22
 COWARD'S SHOT

CURT saw a move or two under in the drift, but not an arrow came at him.

Calling across to them in the Chinook jargon, he tried to work up a palaver. His party came on friends. He was not after furs or the yellow gold of the creek beds. He intended to stay only a short moon in the Lilliar range. He had ordered his men not to lift the shoot-stick against the Kioshees. Why then should the Kioshees try to kill him? Would they send a man across to talk with him and learn that the strangers brought no harm?

The only answer he got was his own echo sounding back from the wall of spruces.

"Maybe they don't understand the jargon," he thought; and he called across again, using sign language and the few Dinnee words he knew.

Still no answer. Not a syllable.

Piling up several flat rocks, he laid out an array of presents—tobacco, six fine hunting knives which he had brought along for that purpose, and a big carton of sugar cubes, the best present of all, for most of the northern tribes he had known were badly sugar-starved.

As he turned away, a little wisp of cloud-white puffing out from the drift; the sharp kringing of a rifle smacked across the water; a murderous bullet burned through the leather of his jacket, not three inches from his heart.

He whirled around to run. Along the whole beach there was not a single boulder or drift-pile big enough to hide behind, and the nearest snag was more than two hundred yards away. He made a dash for it, waiting as he ran.

He realized it was LeNolr, who had shot at him. The Kioshees had no rifles. Still in good range on the open beach, he expected every instant to hear that sharp-speaking rifle again. But nothing happened. Why wasn't the "breed trying to cut him down?"

To his own bewilderment he reached the snag and leaped behind it without another bullet coming his way.

As he crouched behind the snag and looked across at the drift, he gradually saw through the queer incident. At so suddenly a range LeNolr had felt sure of killing him with a single shot; and had whipped up his gun and fired. But his bullet had missed its mark, and before he could shoot again the Indians had seized his rifle and stopped him.

In spite of that ugly hole through his sleeve, the incident seemed a good omen to Curt, and for the first time he really believed that he was going to win the Kioshees over. They were honest men. In their own primitive way, as old Paxton and Inspector Jamieson had said. With wit and patience he might make ends of them yet.

Curt looked over the lake.

stream back into the ranges. At old John's trapping lake, twenty-five miles east, he had a rendezvous to keep. On the chance that a plane in the Lilliar country might come in handy, he had instructed Smash to meet him there with the amphibian. The rendezvous was two days past already.

"One devil of a chance I've got of ever meeting Smash," he swore, "fled up as I am. I can't stir an inch away from this outfit."

The afternoon passed, twilight crept into the mountain valley. After supper he shoveled ash over the coals and gave his instructions: "No fire tonight, no matches struck, no talking above a low tone. Nobody is to go into those tents or anywhere near them. The farther away you stay, the better. If there's any shooting done, Paul and I'll do it."

"Francols, if you and Jocku get us into trouble with those itchy trigger fingers, I'll set you off on a mosquito island in your bare skin. I want you to keep strictly out of this. Now understand me."

He let Paul have the west side, which faced the little willow island. Taking rifle and automatic, he himself went up to the tip to watch the north and east.

The peaks of the western range were still tinged with an orange glow, but the mountain valley was filled with black shadow up to timberline. It was like a basin full of blackness, with a faint light around the rim. A bright moon overhead turned the waters to wavy silver. He was thankful for that friendly moon; sentry-go was infinitely easier than in darkness.

Five hundred yards north two merganser ducks started calling back and forth. For a time he paid no attention but when they kept it up longer than ducks should have done, he began listening closely. The calls sounded all right, he could detect nothing wrong about them; but he had his suspicions. Maybe it was a pair of ducks out there. And maybe a pair of canoes signaling to each other.

STROKES OF GENIUS
 by SAMUEL JOHNSON & ALFRED PARKERTHE SYNDICS OF THE CLOTH-GUILD
 by REMBRANDT

THE GREATER HIS WORK.
 THE POORER HE BECAME!

A TIRELESS worker, Rembrandt produced over 900 masterpieces! At 24, "he had left himself no room for improvement" in the art of etching. He was a very absent-minded man; a friend once found him calmly drawing in the open during a heavy bombardment, unaware that Amsterdam was at war!

The "Syndics of the Cloth Guild" portrays the five directors of the Drapers' Guild, seated around a table with a servant standing in the background. The character of each individual is depicted perfectly, and the masterpiece, one of Rembrandt's greatest, is the best picture in the world of a group of distinguished business men. It was done in 1661, when Rembrandt was 55, and is now in the Rijks Museum in Amsterdam.

Rembrandt learned to paint men's souls rather than their faces. The public did not understand his startling discoveries and refused to buy his pictures. Like a true artist, he continued to follow his principles, even though it led to bankruptcy, the loss of his home and the forced sale of his possessions and art treasures!

POLITICS at Random

By BRAYER PRICE
 (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

ONE of the most confusing situations in all political history will confront the voter in 1934 if, as many expect, the inflation issue is carried over into the congressional campaign.

Even in 1934, when the silver dispute developed many complicated ramifications, the question presented for decision seemed simple compared to the currency problem of today.

There is no agreement as to what the administration plans to do with the wide inflationary powers it has, and, on the other hand, there is no union of thought among those who criticize the administration.

Possibly some of the fog may lift as time goes by, but it is expecting a great deal to assume that anyone is likely to appear on either side who can state the question simply and understandably, in terms not open to dispute, so that it can be answered directly "Yes" or "No."

Double Doubts

BROADLY, it appears that most of the protests against the Roosevelt gold-buying program rest not so much on objections to the intrinsic economic soundness of that policy, but on apprehension as to its ultimate result.

The apprehension takes two directions. Some argue that the constant change in gold prices, however much good it may be doing to the currency, is leading to disastrous business uncertainty. Others deduce that the gold program, although not dangerous in itself, is a first and irrevocable step toward later wild inflation.

Stated more compactly, the present question largely settles down to this: Can inflation be controlled?

THE answer would be easier if there were agreement on the meaning of the terms involved.

Administration opponents talk of themselves as the "sound money" crowd. Yet Mr. Roosevelt, too, is pledged to "sound money"—the words come directly out of the last democratic platform—and certainly no one is going about shouting for "unsound money."

The term "inflation" is quite as elusive as used today. Generally it means cheapening the value of money, and setting more of it into circulation. Some think gold-buying is inflation; others even think inflation began under Hoover. Still others are assuring the country, "There has been no inflation yet."

In Wall Street many regard Senator Elmer Thomas as the wildest kind of inflationist, but he, himself, hints that he is not for inflation at all. He says he wants "currency expansion."

Making A Party Issue

NOR is that the whole difficulty. To be determining in a campaign, an issue must be made a party issue. How is that to be done?

Many thought party lines pretty well demarcated by the campaign of 1932. It seems to have escaped general notice that the currency debate has demarcated them far more.

Al Smith was regular enough to support Mr. Roosevelt for President, but he is not regular enough to support him now. Senator Borah was not insurgent enough to back to Roosevelt in '32, but he is insurgent enough to come to his defense now. To millions of voters, it all is pretty much of a headache. And probably the worst is yet to come.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—"Big Jim" Farley is going on a vacation to Europe—the first, according to the postmaster general, he has had in so long that he can't remember what one is like.

But when he would leave and where on the continent he'd visit was something that he kept to himself when he made the first announcement of his plans.

"Going to the Riviera, Mr. Postmaster General?" he was asked.

"Might pass through," he replied.

At all mention of his sailing date, however, he preferred to keep silent.

No one knew better than Mr. Farley, who served as the chief patron of the administration, what would have happened had he announced the date of his departure so far in advance. There would probably have been a record-breaking march of the job-hungry toward his quarters.

Washington politicians regard it as significant that "Big Jim" has chosen this particular time for an admittedly needed rest. They figure he won't be away so very long. If he leaves now he can get in his vacation and still be back by the time congress convenes on January 3.

No one believes "Big Jim" will be missing from Washington at that time.

No Hard Feelings

INCIDENTALLY, if Farley ever has had any feelings of depression over the outcome of the New York marital election as one here has been able to detect it. Since the election of LaGuardia, he has exchanged cracks with those who would joke him about McKee's defeat and admit he "guessed wrong."

Recently while discussing his vacation with newspapermen, he was asked if he would go to Europe on an American boat.

"I'll come back on one, but probably go over on an Italian ship," he said.

"An Italian ship, General?" someone asked in mock surprise as the others roared.

"I got you," he replied. "But you should see the reply I got from LaGuardia after my message of congratulations. Fiorello and I long have been warm personal friends."

Will Sheppard Continue?

SENATE gallery observers are wondering if an event which has occurred annually for the last 13 years on the senate floor is to be reenacted next January 16.

January 16, 1919, is the day on which the thirty-sixth state ratified the eighteenth amendment. Every year since then, at high noon, Senator Sheppard of Texas, "father" of prohibition, has taken to the senate floor and praised the results to the nation.

January 16, 1931, will see the amendment definitely out of the constitution. Sheppard's friends, however, believe he will speak and sound the keynote for the renewal of effort to bring back national prohibition.

Gallic Fortress Is Found

Discovery has been made near Clermont Ferrand, France, of a vast fortified place, which constitutes one of the most important remains of ancient Gallic civilization.

News from the World on Wheels

When General Motors Corporation, now observing its 25th anniversary, was organized in 1908, the town of Pittston, Pa., had an ordinance limiting automobile speed to one mile in six minutes. Motorists were required to toot their horn every time they approached a street crossing.

Further indication that the phenomenal record recently set by Chrysler dealers for November sales will continue throughout the month is furnished by figures covering the period ending November 13. Retail deliveries of Chrysler cars by Chrysler dealers in this period were 1,174, while 6,178 Plymouths were delivered, a total of 7,352 units for the combined lines.

A new era in rail transportation, the introduction of a cheaper passenger and freight service to small communities, and a number of other advantages are foreshadowed by successful tests of a Dodge-chassis, rubber-tired 70-mile-an-hour Railmobile. The trials, conducted by automobile engineers and railroad technicians, are being watched with the keenest interest by railroad executives in all parts of the country.

Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary Meeting

year both socially and financially, as will be seen by the reports that will follow, under the able leadership of our president, Mrs. Walter Miller, Sr., and the following officers: President, Mrs. Walter Miller, Sr.; first vice president, Mrs. Edward Loughran; second vice president, Mrs. Patrick Lloyd; third vice president, Miss Mary McGinnis; fourth vice president, Mrs. J. Foster; recording secretary, Mrs. A. W. Mott; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Walter Miller, Jr.; treasurer, Mrs. Walter Fales.

The annual charity ball which was held on Easter Monday night, was the one event of the year financially, as well as socially, looked forward to by all. The money raised was used, Mrs. James Hickey donating so generously. Mrs. Frank Egan, chairman of the entertainment, deserved much credit as it was really delightful, being all home talent, and also the music which was two local orchestras, secured by Mrs. W. Miller, Sr., and Mrs. Edward Loughran.

The social activity committee, of which Mrs. James T. O'Reilly was chairman, and her committee, undertook as their first activity the decorating of the hospital and nurses' home for Christmas, which brought much cheer to all around it, and much credit should be given to all who helped decorate.

Hospital Day was celebrated in former years, and a very interesting program was arranged, the speakers being the Very Rev. John Joseph Stanley, Acting Mayor Conrad J. Heislman, Dr. Lucas Hoeve, Dr. O'Connor and Dr. Mark O'Meara. The above program was in charge of Mrs. J. T. O'Reilly, Mrs. F. O'Connor and Mrs. Edward Reynolds.

In October, the members of the nurses' graduating class were given a delicious treat, in the form of a luncheon and bridge at Vassar College Alumnae Hall, Poughkeepsie, by the auxiliary. The graduating exercises were also participated in by the auxiliary.

A prize in memory of Sister Aloysis founder of the Benedictine Hospital Training School for nurses, was given to one of the graduates; interest from an endowment fund provided for this prize.

Our annual tea which is being held December 6 in honor of the outgoing officers will be a most memorable affair as a fitting program is planned and a real social time is looked forward to.

Mrs. James T. O'Reilly and her committee are to be commended for their successful accomplishment in the above affairs.

A number of new members have been added to the membership of the auxiliary during the past year under the chairmanship of Mrs. Mark O'Meara.

Mrs. Walter Miller, Jr., of the purchasing committee, performed her duties most satisfactorily. The Layette committee in complete charge of Mrs. John Bolt has done good work in turning over to the hospital many articles needed for the new born babies.

Mrs. Walter Miller, Jr., was most faithful in the discharge of her duties as corresponding secretary for the auxiliary.

The Saugerties and Rosendale auxiliaries are a great asset to the hospital, cooperating in every way for the good of the institution.

We express our sincere appreciation to each committee and its chairman and to all in the community for their cooperation. We thank the newspapers for their generous support and all others who have helped to make this a successful year.

Respectfully submitted,
JEANNETTE MOLLOTT,
Secretary.

To have her burdens shared and lightened by the faithful cooperation on the part of the vice presidents, treasurer, secretary and recording secretary, as well as the chairman of the various committees, namely: the social activities committee, sewing committee, layette committee and last but not least, our circles, whose members have never failed to serve. Our neighbors in Rosendale have also helped our cause and deserve special mention for the many servicable articles they have made for our hospital.

Although times were hard with the banks having closed just a few weeks previous to our ball, it was just as great a success as ever. This was due to the untiring efforts of our president and the interest and unflinching zeal of the officers and each member of the auxiliary, who contributed of their time and means and left nothing undone to make it as outstanding an affair as in previous years.

At no time during the year does the auxiliary president need more whole-hearted support than just preceding the Easter ball. One of the most arduous tasks at this particular time is the securing of a large number of patrons. Mrs. Edward Loughran was chairman of the ticket committee and accomplished a marvelous piece of work. The largest number of tickets were secured by Mrs. Miller, as in former years, and successfully undertaken by Miss Mary McGinnis. Many other members took an active part in this committee and disposed of many tickets. The entertainment came under the direction of Mrs. Egan. It was well planned.

This year the new armory was the stage for our Easter ball, and as on former occasions our decorations were the admiration of all. The interior of the armory was transformed into a scene of richest beauty by the skill and creative power of Mrs. Miller. Much assistance and interest was required on the part of the chairman of the various committees. Here we must pause to pay a loving tribute to one of these chairmen, Mrs. Schatzel, who was always one of the most enthusiastic workers.

The National Hospital Day program and the Christmas holidays decorations have also commanded interest and a vast amount of time and energy to make them successful. The purchasing, membership and publicity committees have all participated in their work well. The program given each year to our training school, in memory of Sister Aloysis as well as the many acts of kindness shown to our nurses during the year, have all been deeply appreciated.

For all this loyal and generous contribution of their services to the Benedictine Hospital, we are most grateful to each and every member of the auxiliary and every member of the hospital.

The review of the activities of the auxiliary for the past two years has shown us the marvelous results accomplished against great obstacles. In these most difficult times, we should, therefore, approach the dawning of another year with the courage and heroism that will strive after richer and greater results. With this prospective vision in view, combined with the whole-hearted encouragement from each and every member of the auxiliary, our newly elected president, Mrs. Edward Loughran, and co-workers will be assured of the splendid support you have given to the auxiliary since the time of its organization. Acting thus, you will be a tower of strength which will be an aid and encouragement to the hospital in its constant endeavor to serve humanity.

Pleasant Program.
After the business part of the afternoon's program a very pleasing program was given and later afternoon tea was served.

The reception room at the nurses' home was attractively decorated. The mantles were banked with silver poinsettias and silver and red leaves. The admirably given program was as follows and was heartily applauded throughout.

Too Dance, "Shadow Waltz"
Beverly Bonesteel
Accompanied by Mrs. Emilia Riccobono Weyhe
Recitations, "Six Times Nine" "Three Little Chestnuts"—Edith Rowland
Tap Dance, "Three Little Pigs"—Beverly Bonesteel
Accompanied by Mrs. Emilia Riccobono Weyhe
Solos, Selected—Mrs. Bernard Forst
Accompanied by Lyle Embree
Dance, "The Doll Dance"—Jane Ball

Tea followed the program, the handsomely appointed tea table having as its centerpiece, an alabaster bowl containing a mistletoe hung miniature Christmas tree, sparkling white as though snow covered. The silver and glass bowls of silver grapes and feathery cressonilla. Mrs. Mark O'Meara and Mrs. N. D. Murphy presided at the tea table and were assisted by the Misses Margaret and Ann O'Meara and Miss Phyllis Eastman.

Mr. Miller Speaks
Mrs. Miller, in addressing the auxiliary, thanked each officer, all of the chairman of the different committees, and all of the members of committees who had assisted her during the year. She then welcomed the new president, Mrs. Edward Loughran to the chair, and wished her a successful year, pledging her hearty cooperation and loyal support of the new administration.

Mrs. Miller was presented by the members of the auxiliary with a set of silver plates and two beautiful corner-cups. She graciously expressed her thanks and appreciation.

Father Stanley Commands
The Very Rev. John J. Stanley was present and in his remarks to the auxiliary members and their guests, congratulated them upon the marvelous amount of work which the auxiliary had accomplished during the year. Looking to the future, he encouraged them to go forward in their good work which is for the benefit of one of God's most noble causes. Father Stanley told the members of the auxiliary that they were the representatives of the hospital to the people of the community and as such, were called upon to make known its wonderful objectives. He hoped that in every possible way at their command they would help the work of the hospital, spreading abroad the story of its mission to all who are sick, thus materially aiding the hospital to fulfill its great and beneficent mission. Nor did Father Stanley forget to commend the auxiliary on the splendid success of its social activities, particularly the annual Easter Ball.

Words of appreciation were expressed by Sister Berenice as follows:
Members of the Auxiliary and friends:
I am very glad you are here today, because it is always a great pleasure for me to recount the activities of our Ladies' Auxiliary.

You are all only too familiar with the wonderful work accomplished by the auxiliary since the time of its organization by our beloved Sister Aloysis. Each year has seen its remarkable growth, always presided over by presidents and officers, fully capable of the burden and trust placed upon them. You will agree with me, I am sure, that it is no easy task to accept such a charge. But after the responsibility has once been assumed, like all other important tasks in life, strength as it were, is given from on high to persevere and obtain the objective.

The auxiliary objective is a very tangible one, namely, to aid our hospital. This has been accomplished in many ways, but particularly by successful social activities, which have never failed to arouse and bring forth whole-hearted support and interest from an appreciative public, not only in Kingston, but wherever the name of the Benedictine Hospital is known.

It is, therefore, with pride and the feeling of the deepest gratitude that we glance for a second at the marvelous amount of work accomplished by our auxiliary under the leadership of our retiring president, Mrs. Walter J. Miller, during the past two years.

This has been an outstanding period for unemployment and fears of dire description. It has therefore, required no small amount of courage and enthusiasm to push forward and carry to successful completion the usual amount of auxiliary activities. Mrs. Miller came forward at this most critical time, two years ago, accepting the office of president, which she has so ably and faithfully filled. It was encouraging to her, however, during this trying period.

Business Girls Heard Fine Talk

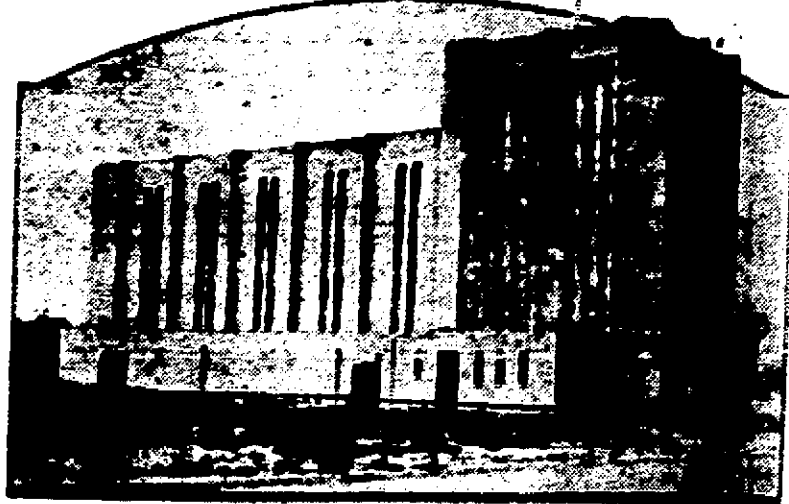

The Business Girls' Club of the Y. W. C. A. at its weekly supper on Wednesday evening featured the coming of Christmas by singing several Christmas carols. The president, Miss Helen Bryant, reminded the girls of the common neighborhood conference at the Newburgh Y. W. C. A. on Friday evening and said she hoped there would be a good representation at the conference. Announcement was made that the supper would be held on December 12th, a special party with special menu and a merry time. Each member of the club is asked to bring a gift, carefully wrapped and to present to some one at the usual way. Miss Bryant also reminded the girls that the Christmas party of the club will be held on December 12th, and that the girls should bring their gifts to the party. With Christmas just around the corner, Miss Bryant urged all girls to send in their gifts to the club. Still another announcement was to the effect that the Schubert Choral Club party and entertainment would be given at the Y. W. C. A. next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. A delightful program has been prepared, including the presentation of the one-act play, "On Ven-geance Height," in which Mrs. Charles Terwilliger will be the star of the evening. After the entertainment there will be dancing to the music of a good orchestra. At the close of the supper, the Rev. Mr. Legg, pastor of the Methodist Church at Port Ewen, was in-duced and gave one of the most interesting talks on "Current Events" heard in a long time. There had been careful thought and study of each event presented. There was straight thinking throughout and a careful consideration of the points of the events, all couched in fine and simple English. The events that Mr. Legg considered included the recent election, generally and locally. Under scientific achievement, Mr. Legg noted the appropriation of $1,500,000 by the government for the building of a quarter-section of a stadium for the accommodation of airplanes or sea, en route to Europe. He also spoke of Commander Settle's ascent of 11 miles into the stratosphere. Under the topic of "The foreign policy of our government," Mr. Legg made it very plain that America is not a neutral country, but is a country that is the ally of all nations. Germany and Hitler were also carefully considered. Coming back home, Mr. Legg found very depressing and important news in that of the lynching in California, and the attitude of Governor Rolfe.

Polar Bears Are Happy in Chicago's New Zoo

CHICAGO'S new zoological park at Brookfield, a suburb, is fast approaching completion and many animals are being installed in quarters made to resemble closely their natural habitat. The photograph shows a group of polar bears in their den retreating in a touch of wintry weather.

"Futurist" Church Arouses Protests

EXTERIOR view of St. Saviour's church at Eltham, England, which was completed recently at a cost of about $50,000. While some church-goers express a liking for the new edifice, it has, in general, aroused a storm of protest because of its fortress-like construction. It is built of purple brick and has long slit-like windows. The vicar, Rev. G. H. Isaacson, sees in the building an attempt on the part of the church to meet the needs of the Twentieth century.

Handits' Wild Ride Ends With Gun Fight

Thieves, said to have robbed passengers, attacked and commandeered bus, captured by police at Rensselaer.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 7 (AP).—A wild ride in a motor bus commandeered by two men who are alleged to have robbed the passengers and one of them is charged with attacking a woman, ended early today with a gun fight in Rensselaer, across the Hudson river from Albany.

Both of the alleged handits were wounded. One man, Nicholas Way-vovich of Springfield, Mass., was surrounded by city police and state troopers as he drove into Rensselaer.
The other, a negro named James Jackson, was arrested several hours later at his home in Springfield.
Jackson is the alleged assailant of the woman passenger.

The two men boarded the bus bound from Springfield, Mass., for Pittsfield, at Chester, Mass., about twenty miles east of Pittsfield. The white man poked a pistol into the ribs of the driver, Clarence Burnett, of Pittsfield, ordered him to keep it in his hand, and the two passengers and attacked the woman.

Reaching Pittsfield, the handits compelled Burnett to continue to "diner" at West Lebanon, N. Y., and the negro, started because his actions had aroused suspicion, plunged into the woods. At the same time, Burnett and the two passengers, Miss Harriet Richards, proprietor of a beauty shop in Pittsfield, and a Mr.
Richmond of Rochester, made their escape.

Wayvovich, when he saw the negro make a dash for the woods, speeded up the bus in the direction of Albany.
In the meantime, State Troopers had been notified to be on the watch for the bus, and as it raced down the hills into Rensselaer police prowl cars were in pursuit. Wayvovich is alleged to have fired upon the pursuing officers, but when he reached Rensselaer he deserted the bus and tried to run away, but the police closed in upon him and captured him.

Wayvovich was ordered sent to jail on a reckless driving charge. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace R. J. Elliott of East Greenbush.

Thomas H. Richmond of Rochester, one of the bus passengers, reported he was robbed of $10, while Miss Richards said she lost a small amount of change. Richmond today helped state police prepare a case against the two men.

It was reported that Wayvovich and Cole answered the descriptions of two men wanted in Springfield for the theft of two automobiles yesterday. The first car was abandoned when a tire went flat and the second was left when it developed engine trouble.

Two year Old Murder Case Clues Sought Here

friendly and that they were taken in another car to the place where their bodies were found.

Mrs. Josephine Nadal Tollison claimed that the last she had seen Brinker was on April 15, when he drove her to the shopping district at Flushing and left her.

The first wife of Brinker told the officials at the time of the murder that she had seen Brinker a short time before and he had told her that she would not be bothered with him much longer as a girl friend had "fired a couple of shots" at him recently. The girl friend was not recalled at the time by the officials.

A number of Nassau county officers have been investigating the case since the time of the murder with the help of state troopers who have been making an investigation in Kingston and the Shokan neighborhood. Sergeants Cunningham and Lockhart have been busy the past two months on the case.

Following a conference between the Nassau officers and the Troopers an inquiry was continued by District Attorney Murray Tuesday night, continuing till nearly six o'clock Wednesday morning.

Those questioned were Josephine Nadal of Shokan; her brother, Raymond Nadal, and Joe Bennett of Kingston, Isabel Nadal Lopez, Fernando Loreda, Mano Friere and Joe Alvez.

On advice of their counsel, Chris J. Fianagan, Isabel Lopez, Josephine Nadal, Mano Friere and Raymond Nadal refused to testify before the Ulster county grand jury now in session unless they were granted immunity.

They will be subpoenaed to appear before the Nassau county grand jury next Tuesday.

ning, December 12 at 8:15 o'clock,

Wurts Street Baptist Church.

A Presbyterian Supper

ly supper for the members of the sembly room of the church this evening. Supper will be served at 5 served. A free will offering will be taken.

New Weapons Speak Woe for Evil Doers In City and County

Sub-machine Guns, With Potential Firing Speed of 600 Shots a Minute, Tried Out Yesterday—Standard Equipment Now At Sheriff and Police Headquarters.

Evil doers would do well to give Kingston and Ulster county a wide berth if they desire to escape with a whole skin, for the sheriff's office, as well as the local police department, is now equipped with modern Thompson sub-machine guns capable of pouring hot lead at a target at the rate of 600 shots a minute. The guns were given a test yesterday at the Wilbur sand lot, when the city police under Sergeant Phinney and officials from the sheriff's office witnessed a test of the guns.

The guns fire a .45 calibre bullet from either a clip holding 25 shots or a cylinder holding 50 shots. The cylinder or the clip may be reloaded within the space of a few seconds. Unlike many of the machine-gun types on the market, the sub-machine gun is not a cumbersome weapon to use and may be fired either from the shoulder or from the hip without the aid of a removable stock. The weapon is exceptionally small and short and may be used with difficulty in a motor car or where space is limited. Fired either from the hip or shoulder there is no recoil, as the officers found out Wednesday at target practice. Improvements, which permit the escape of gas before the bullets leave the muzzle of the gun and thereby eliminating the customary up-pull which older types of guns usually had, and the extreme nice balance of the new sub-machine gun make it not only a hard hitter but a very accurate gun on the target.

The officials were familiarizing themselves with the weapons Wednesday in order to be ready for any emergency which may arise. Addition of these guns to the arsenal of the local police and the sheriff's office brings their equipment up to date. Sheriff Saxe was highly pleased with the work of the gun. The sheriff's office is now equipped for any trouble at a moment's notice and the men attached to the office have been taught to handle the guns, so that in case of an emergency they will be able to use the weapon to every advantage.

So short, well-balanced and light is the gun that it may be shot from the seat of an automobile in case of pursuit of another vehicle and the recoil is so slight that it does not interfere with accurate shooting.

Football Team Guest of Rotary

Over 20 members of the Maroon football squad that brought Kingston a DUSO League crown this year as well as the Hamilton Fish Trophy for Hudson Valley football supremacy, were guests of honor at the Rotary Club luncheon at the hotel Governor Clinton yesterday noon. Included in the group was Coach G. Warren Kias, Captain Tony Debrinsky and Captain-elect Marco Tiano of next year's aggregation.

Superintendent of Schools D. C. Van Ingen spoke a few words on behalf of the men who composed the team, and stated that he had received messages from other schools in the DUSO League expressing good will on Kingston's march to victory and extolling the fighting spirit and clean sportsmanship of the members of the Maroon eleven that represented Kingston this year. "I read these messages to you," said Mr. Van Ingen, "as a means of showing the healthy rivalry between the schools that make up the DUSO League."

Coach Kias was then asked to say a few words about his team and football in general. After introducing all of the players present at the luncheon, Mr. Kias went into a general discussion on football, explaining how a team is built up, how the players are conditioned and fitted into the places best adapted to their talents, how tackling, blocking and ball carrying are perfected, and he closed his interesting talk with diagram pictures of various plays, and stressed the duties of each man participating in them.

That Kingston is justly proud of its football team was clearly demonstrated by the enthusiasm and interest displayed at the meeting. An under rated ball club at the start of the season, the Maroon jerseyed Kingston outfit sparkled through a tough schedule and wrote history into local high school tradition by accomplishing something no other team in Kingston history has ever been able to do.

Hunter Big Five to Play Luckies at the White Eagle Tonight

Opponents of Jack Troy's Luckies at White Eagle Hall, Delaware avenue, tonight will be the Hunter Big Five, a quartet of basketball players who are expected to give the Luckies their toughest battle in three starts.

A crowd is expected to get under way at 8 p. m., following a preliminary between the Hunter and Fuller Girls. This contest is set for 7:30.

The Luckies lineup: Herb Van Dusen, "Chirp" Rhymer and Phil Kelly, forwards; Jack Kelly and Pete Schilling, centers; Don Kelly, Mickey Hesta and Bob Guilum, guards.

Grid Coaches in for Annual Shake-ups

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Coaching heads have already begun to drop in to the gridiron, in keeping with the traditional college custom of demanding a reckoning at the close of a disastrous campaign of a periodic house-cleaning on general principles.

The mortality rate for 1933 apparently will be as high as ever, even though the demands for high-pressure production are less conspicuous than they were when put under the Carnegie Foundation's microscope a few years ago. Upwards of a dozen head coaches so far have become involved in shake-ups or prospective changes at larger colleges or universities. The list may be doubled before the head-hunting season closes.

Head coaches at Texas A. & M. and Lehigh already have been replaced. Others have resigned at Dartmouth, Texas, Kentucky, Boston University and South Dakota State, more or less under fire. Speculation meanwhile has been rife over possible changes at North Carolina, Auburn and Rice in the south, Yale and New York University in the east, Notre Dame, Indiana, Purdue, Missouri and Wisconsin in the middle west.

Chief interest centered nearly all season in the possible shakeup at Notre Dame, support for Hank Anderson, who succeeded Knute Rockne, has been rallied since Notre Dame's exciting last-game victory over the Army but the feeling persists that a change is likely. The name of Noble Kizer, of Purdue, has been the most often linked with the job despite denials.

26 Deaths Attributed To Football in 1933

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—A record of progress was marked up today in the efforts to check the deaths caused by football as a survey made by the Associated Press revealed only 26 deaths directly attributable to the game during the 1933 season.

Last year a similar survey showed 38 football deaths and in 1931 there were fifty.

Ten more deaths may be partly charged against the game but are considered doubtful. In these cases doctors said football injuries may have been contributing factors.

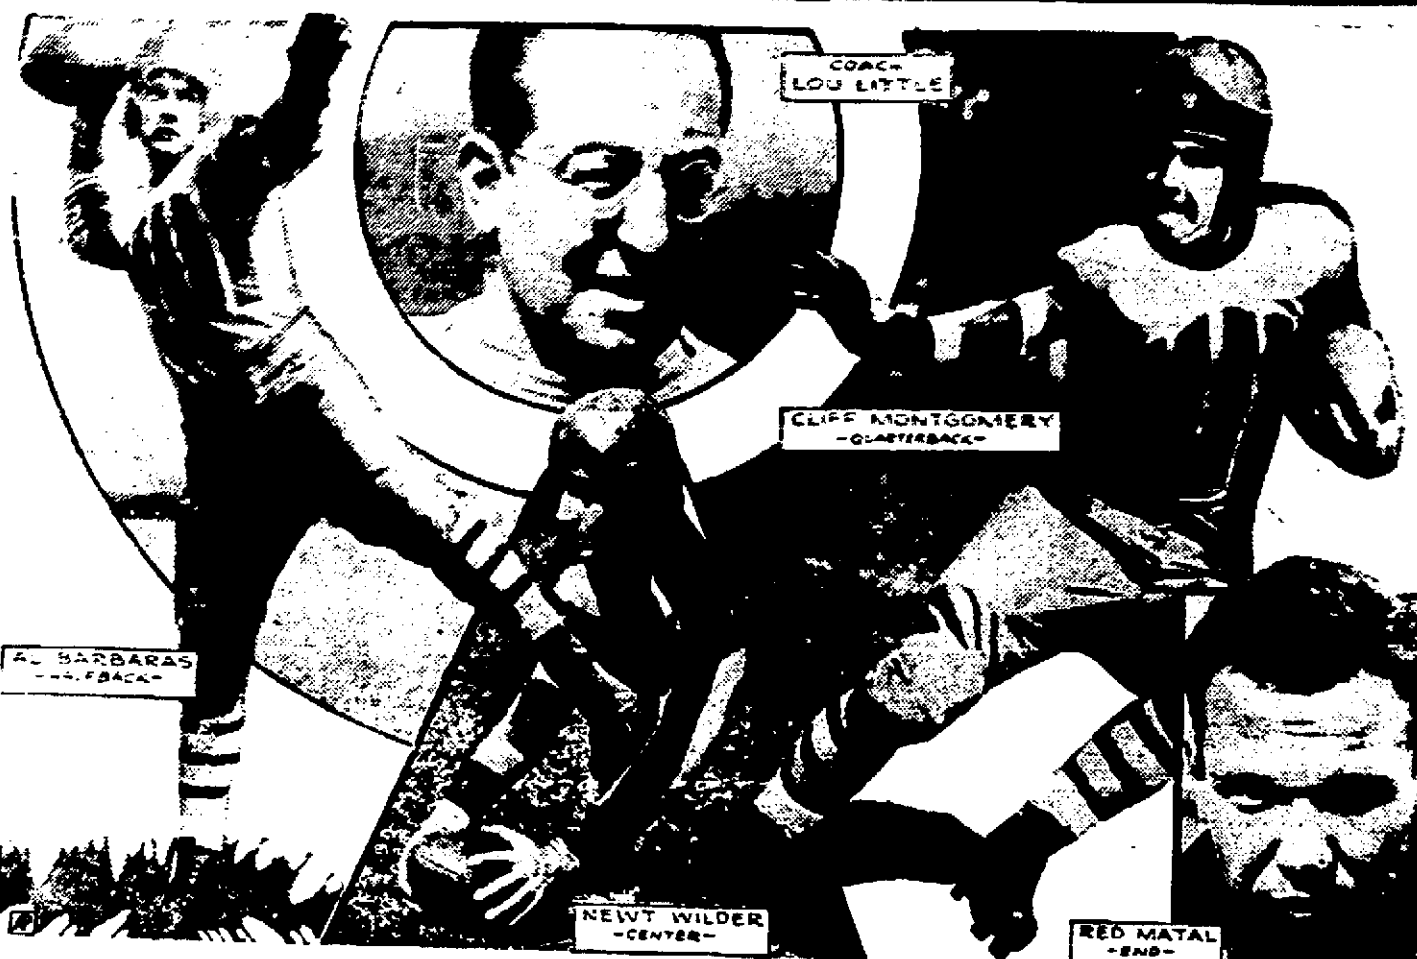

High schools alone showed the greatest number of fatalities, 16, and "sandlot" games were next with 13 deaths. Not one college varsity player died as the result of football injuries and only two college freshmen are listed as having died of injuries that could be traced to supervised games or practice.

The 26 deaths, including the ten "doubtful" fatalities, are classified as follows: College 5; high school 14; sandlot 13; semi-pro and athletic clubs, 2.

PORT EWEN SCOUT JUNIORS EDGE OUT MATADORS, 15-13

At Port Ewen, Wednesday night, the Scout Juniors defeated the Matadors by the score of 15-13. Mack and Schumann did the best shooting for the winners, scoring four points apiece. Canfield made four for the losers.

Roaring Lions Who Will Tackle Indians In Rose Bowl

The Columbia football squad is small in numbers, but it lacks nothing in the quality of its individuals. Above is Coach Lou Little and a quartet of his outstanding stars. Capt. Cliff Montgomery, a real triple-threat, and Harbas, a 190-pound sophomore bullet, carry the bulk of the team's attack. "Red" Matal is a powerful defense wingman and deadly pass-catcher, while Wilder has been one of the east's high ranking pivot men for the last three years. Wilder does the New York team's field goal kicking.

Chances Look Bright For Carnera-Baer Match In June

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—With Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion, arriving next week from Italy, and Max Baer, his outstanding challenger, due in New York from California early next month, the possibility of their being matched for a title bout next June loomed bright today.

Carnera, who disposed of the challenge of Paulino Uzcudun in Rome before his Fascist public a few weeks ago, already has signed with Madison Square Garden for a title defense any time the bout can be made. The Garden had no knowledge of his sudden departure on an Italian liner yesterday. His business here is believed to have something to do with his legal problems, including a petition in bankruptcy and a breach of promise judgment.

Some Complications.

The situation surrounding Baer is quite different, though he too is immersed in civil law actions that outnumber even Carnera's difficulties. They involve breach of promise and rival managerial claims, but do not touch upon bankruptcy. Although holding the role of outstanding challenger, Baer's motion picture activities and his alliance with Jack Dempsey, rather than the Garden, have so far halted efforts to sign him for a title match.

Baer, when he comes here in January, is expected to appear for a month in a night club show, but recent advice is he will also be receptive to a Garden offer to fight Carnera in June.

Another stumbling block however is the Garden's insistence that Baer must also sign to defend the title for the Garden if he wins it from Carnera, thus precluding any chance of Dempsey cornering the heavyweight championship market. The Garden has held since Tex Rickard captured it with Dempsey.

Anxious for Loughran.

Meanwhile Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia veteran who seems to improve with age, holds the center of the stage in an interesting struggle between Dempsey and the Garden for control of the second heavyweight title.

The Garden wants the former light heavyweight champion to box Carnera in Miami in February. A rival to Tommy's fighting hand is Dempsey, and announcement already has been made that Loughran will meet Max Schmeling in New York or Atlantic City in January under the man mauler's promotion, with the winner tackling Baer in San Francisco February 22.

Loughran, however, has made no announcements, and probably would prefer a title chance against Carnera. He has been uniformly successful, beating men almost twice his size. His most recent victory was a decision over Ray Impellitteri, a 250-pound giant of about Carnera's proportions and skill.

Hebrew-Americans Trounce Hakoahs

Sammy Rosenberg's Hebrew-Americans outclassed the Newburgh Hakoahs, 29-14, at the Downtown Jewish Community Center, Wednesday night, and now feel more certain that they can beat the West Point Helcats next Wednesday on the same court.

Last night M. Basch showed the way for the Hebrews in collecting points. He gleaned 11 on five fields and one foul. Rosenberg and Spitzer, his teammates, were next in line with six each. Scrinsky made seven for the Hakoahs.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The gentlemen of the American Amateur Athletic Union may be entirely right and Germany all wrong in the current dispute over racial discrimination in the Fatherland's athletics, preliminary to the holding of the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, but to this bystander it does not appear any good purpose is being served by the tone of the blast from the U. S. A. at this time and under existing circumstances.

The A. A. U., perhaps, would be the first to resent any foreign interference with its internal affairs or policies. Notwithstanding that the organization seeks to stand on high ground, for universal effect, it would seem the International Olympic Committee is quite well equipped to handle any and all developments in Germany affecting the 1936 games.

Moreover, Germany knows the Olympic standards and presumably sought and received the award of the next international games with the idea of adhering to them.

Barring some definite and conclusive "over act" on Germany's part from the standpoint of conduct of the Olympics, the Games will be held in Berlin on schedule and with the United States taking part as fully as financial circumstances at the time will permit.

Meanwhile the endorsement of the metric system for track and field athletics, so far as the A. A. U. governs the sport, marks another triumph for mass legislation.

There are sound arguments, as well as much opinion for and against the metric standards of measurement, but they were by no means brought to full parliamentary debate and consideration at the Pittsburgh convention of the A. A. U.

To the country at large, yards and miles still represent the standard and popular idea of measurement. The 100 yard dash and the one mile run are still the classic track distances to most of us, rather than the 100 meters and 1500 meters which catch the eye only during Olympic years.

Yet this factor, as well as the re-action to the adoption of the metric system last year, appeared to receive scant consideration.

No Follow Through.

With only one or two dissenting voices, the track coaches of the Eastern and Far Western colleges raised their voices in violent protest last spring against the metric system but, like most groups of this kind, they over-estimated the carrying power of their voices and neglected to follow through with action calculated to make their views influential.

One may well wonder what Dink Templeton of Stanford, who loudly condemned the A. A. U. "politicians" after the metric system was again endorsed, was doing at the time Far Western delegates were being chosen or instructed. The tactics of the ambush are not always effective.

Thus, if Princeton's great Bill Bonthron has any idea of taking another crack at the world's one mile record, which he and Jack Lorelock cracked to smithereens last July, it will have to be done under some specially arranged circumstances on this side or else confined to his prospective trip to England in 1934 or 1935.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Dec. 6.—The local Sunday School service held Sunday afternoon was well attended and keenly interesting. Among visitors present were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sampson of Shokan. Mr. Sampson, who is a learned student of the Bible, conducted the adult class. Next Sunday all donations pledged for the Christmas fund are requested to be handed in to the superintendent. The date of the Christmas entertainment is not yet decided. Everyone is most cordially welcome at the services, which with cooperation on the part of all interested may be continued through the winter months.

Mr. Sampson requested that the West Shokan news column carry an announcement that the Reformed Sunday school will give their entertainment on December 24, Christmas Eve, which it is hoped will not be conflicting with the plans of others.

The pancake and sausage supper held Saturday evening, December 2, at the home of Town Clerk and Mrs. John C. Marshall at Olive Bridge, was attended by the board members and their ladies, also several guests. The sumptuous feast consisted of the following bill of fare: Hot buckwheat cakes made from C. H. Stokes' Kerhonkson flour, Sunny Cliff De Luxe pork sausage, gravy, Judge Weldner's strained honey, maple syrup, quince, blackberry and grape jellies, Mrs. Marshall's homemade pumpkin pie and coffee. The group of notables present and partaking were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and son, Harry, Supervisor and Mrs. Chester A. Lynde, Justice and Mrs. Fred L. Weldner, Justice and Mrs. Lester S. Davis, Justice and Mrs. Henry Winchell, Commissioner of Highways William Jordan, Miss Cornelia Davis, and Elwyn Davis.

A local group of local fans attended the Kingston High School Thanksgiving football game.

Allured by the call of the sunny southland, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lucht and son, Howard, of North Main Street Heights bade their friends and neighbors adieu, and left by auto Sunday for Miami, Florida, where they will join the other members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schmoekel and daughter, Lou, there for the winter.

Charles Hesley of West Shokan Heights entered Kingston Hospital as a patient Sunday evening. Mr. Hesley underwent a hernia operation on Monday, performed by Dr. Johnston. His condition at latest report is fine. Mr. Hesley's ailment developed from an injury sustained during the early summer while employed as foreman on local road work.

Nicholas Winkler of Kingston has disposed of his Hasbrouck avenue store property. His daughter, Theresa, is now making her home here with her brother, Edward, and is continuing at Kingston High School.

William Colange's second well on his reservoir, being drilled by Robert Skoutenburg, is already down some 150 feet. The results to date are, bone dry except for a meagre two gallon per minute test flow. The drilling is for the purpose of augmenting the natural flow of spring water in Mr. Colange's storage reservoir in time of water shortage.

Pupils having made a perfect attendance record at the West Shokan school during the month of November are as follows: Alicia Henriksen, Virginia Henriksen, Walter Willow, Arthur Henriksen, Edward Hillje, Robert Burgher, Mildred Roe, Charles Weldner, Christopher Henriksen, Catherine Roe. The school is hoping to score a 100 per cent attendance for December.

Professor and Mrs. Arthur Condon of Palenville were entertained Saturday evening at luncheon with Mrs. Watson Bishop and grandson, Donald, at West Shokan Heights.

Olive Rebekah Lodge No. 470 will confer the dramatized Rebekah degree upon a class of candidates at their first Thursday of the month meeting, to be held this week, December 7. Refreshments and a social hour will be after initiation features. A full turnout of the members is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Burgher spent Thanksgiving day with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Toms of Woodstock.

Jordan Brothers of Broadhead Heights are continually making improvements to their farm buildings and adding to their equipment. During the past summer they have set up a new 70-ton crane silo; have recently constructed a milk cooling house of approved design, and are at present concreting their barnyard.

Francis Conro, a nephew, spending a few weeks at the old home after a strenuous season at Lake Mohonk, has just completed a two-coat paint job on the fine farm residence. Jordan Brothers are rated among the town's largest and most successful general and dairy farmers.

Versatile Ernie Constable, High Point Mountain farmer, and brother, Able, veteran D. W. S. employee, have had their fond hopes blighted in their prospective developing of a Guernsey dairy herd. Fortified against the ravages of winter's feeding with a barn filled with hay, they had the misfortune to lose after a week's indisposition their prize expectant young cow, which with the assistance of the housekeeper, Mrs. McGreevy, has been faithfully groomed and nurtured from a young calf. Everything possible was done to bring relief, but without avail. Having decided that the animal had perished lost its quid the much worried Ernie crammed a three-pound salt mackerel down its throat Saturday morning, but the substitute morsel produced nary results.

The noble experiment having ended in failure Ernie says he is now inclined to quit the dairy venture and to go in for raising venison if only he can catch and stable that wily old "King of the mountain buck". He planned all season in the succulent old buck meadow.

Katherine A. Sherman of Dwyer's Corner was entertained Saturday evening among friends in Kingston.

THANKSGIVING PROGRAM AT "OUR SCHOOL" AT STONE RIDGE

An offering for "those less fortunate" was the keynote of "Our School's" Thanksgiving program, which was held at Stone Ridge, November 29, at 10 a. m. Each one of the 25 children was asked to bring a gift of food which was placed upon an empty table at the back of the stage, thereby filling it for the benefit of some family which otherwise would go without. An invocation for this ceremony was pronounced by Robert Keyes, of Sarville, after which Miss Elinor King recited "Because I have been given much, I too shall give," by Grace Noll Crowell.

The patriotic spirit of the occasion was fulfilled by appropriate music and recitations: "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "The Star Spangled Banner" played as horn solos on the melophone by Gerow Smiley; Governor Bradford's "Declaration for Thanksgiving," recited by Miki Petersham; "The Flag Goes By" by Harry Snyder; and the Flag Salute by the School.

Other recitations on the program were: "Slow Approach," by Jimmie Hanstein and Philip Reading; "It Might Be Worse," by Alice Dunbar; "The Pumpkin's Complaint," by Loren Snyder; "A Tale of Thanksgiving," by Matthew Hasbrouck, Jr.; "Prayer for Thanksgiving," by Betty Van Winkle; "Indian Children," by Howard Van Winkle, Jr.; "Reprieve," by Betty Hasbrouck, Elinor King and Rachel Smiley; and "Autumn Leaves," by Carol Foord of Kerhonkson.

The two-act Thanksgiving play presented this year, entitled "White Meat," was written by Rachel Smiley of Lake Mohonk. Jane Pearson of High Falls contributed an original poem, "Turkey Tradition," and also a song, "Bring the Good Old Turkey."

One of the most effective numbers on the program was a song sung by the school to the tune of "The Little Old Church in the Valley," to the accompaniment of church chimes, loaned very kindly by Thomas Basball of Kingston.

The affair terminated with a Thanksgiving wish for all, expressed by "Our Wishbone Twins," Thatcher Wood and Francis Smiley, Jr., and aided by a tremendous cardboard wishbone under the arch of which the entire school marched off the stage to its vacation. Those assisting with the program were Robert Carlton and Van Lear Woodard, Jr., Mrs. Kenneth Campbell, Miss Margaret Schoonmaker and Mrs. Ashton Hart.
